Shah Is Bitter Over Pompidou Snub

PARIS, Oct. 7 (IHT).—The Shah of Iran today angrily attacked critics of this month's anniversary of the 2,500th anniversary of the Persian Empire...

The Shah of Iran

"What are we reproached?" he asked, "serving dinner to 50 heads of state? What am I supposed to do, give them bread and radishes?"

But his bitterest comments were reserved for Mr. Pompidou who announced late last month that he would not be going to Persopolis.

"You will certainly find people in my entourage who will tell you that the French chief of state wasn't happy about the order of precedence established by the Iranian imperial court...

He pointed out that these same rules of protocol were observed even in republics, like France and the United States...

"It would be a shame, a real shame," he added, "if a matter of protocol created a misunderstanding between our two countries."

Mr. Pompidou announced Sept. 20 that France would be represented at the Oct. 14-15 celebration by Prime Minister Jacques Chaban-Desmas...

Reds Allowing Frenchman To Preserve Angkor Ruins

By Terence Smith

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (UPI).—A noted French archaeologist is being permitted by the North Vietnamese to cross back and forth through Communist lines...

The arrangement was worked out last year in intensive negotiations between diplomats in Phnom Penh, Paris and Hanoi...

The archaeologist is Philippe Bernard Groslier, 43, who has served for years as director of Conservation in Phnom Penh...

The arrangement was described in an interview by Richard Melville, an official of the Asia Society who visited Cambodia last month on a mission sponsored by the John D. Rockefeller 3d fund...

within the country had either Iraqi or Palestinian guerrilla support behind it.

The Shah angrily denied charges made by el-Falah that Iranian authorities had tortured political prisoners...

Questioned further about the alleged torture, the Shah somewhat surprisingly admitted that Iran has found several ways apart from torture "to oblige the guilty to confess."

"There are several [ways]," he explained, "very sophisticated ways—for example, moral pressures."

Touching on his country's armed forces, the Shah told Le Monde that within five years "Iran will have the most powerful army in the Middle East, bigger than those of Egypt, Turkey and Israel."

Asked about his country's "ever closer cooperation with the Soviet Union and the risk of Communism in Iran, the Shah responded that Russia would not risk losing access to Iranian raw materials through trying to increase Communist influence in Iran."

"The natural-gas pipeline that was recently opened and which enables us to deliver huge quantities of gas to Moscow," said the Shah, "is worth, in our judgment, more than ten divisions."

B-52s Launch Heavy Attacks In Laos, S. Vietnam, Cambodia

SAIGON, Oct. 7 (AP).—U.S. B-52 bombers "launched heavy strikes in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos today, while ground fighting dwindled to small patrol clashes and shelling attacks."

About 30 of the bombers, which are based in Thailand, dropped 900 tons of explosives on suspected North Vietnamese troop positions, storage depots and supply routes in the three countries.

About half of the strikes were along the South Vietnam-Cambodian frontier where North Vietnamese troops were reported pulling back after a 10-day offensive of mostly rockets and mortar attacks against South Vietnamese bases.

Typhoon Elaine curtailed allied operations in the northern quarter of South Vietnam. Meanwhile, in Saigon, a band of 20 to 30 motorcycle-riding students staged an anti-American attack today at the Abraham Lincoln Library, throwing rocks and hurling firebombs at American vehicles.

No injuries were reported and the students fled before police arrived. The library, run by the U. S. Public Affairs Office for Vietnamese, said the students stormed past the gate as the guard tried to close it, knocking him out of the way.

The students hurled rocks at one car, then firebombed it. Another firebomb fell harmlessly inside the courtyard on the steps of the library.

Also today, Australia's 3d Infantry Battalion left Vietnam for home aboard the troop carrier Sydney to start the final pullout of Australian troops from South Vietnam. There are about 500 men in the battalion.

Nixon Gives His Economic Plan

The second board, to hold down prices, will be made up of seven people outside of government public members not beholden to any special-interest group, Mr. Nixon said.

As with the pay board, standards set by this body may be overruled by the administration but, once they are agreed on, the board will have full power to make its own decision in individual cases.

Mr. Nixon said the price commission's goal will be to continue to drive down the rate of inflation—"this goal that can only be achieved with the active cooperation of workmen and businessmen, farmers and consumers, members of the Congress, and of our state and local governments—that means all of us."

"We will permit some adjustments of prices and wages that fairness demands," Mr. Nixon said, "but we will not permit inflation to flare up again."

White House officials said certain industries will have to seek approval before making individual price decisions, others will be required only to notify the administration of their decisions, while a third, and the largest, group will only be required to record increases made.

This last group—small businessmen and shopkeepers—will be subject to spot checks by an army of 3,000 tax officers operating in the field.

Voluntary Cooperation. Mr. Nixon said that experience since the freeze began proves conclusively that a vast majority of Americans will cooperate wholeheartedly with a system of voluntary restraint.

He warned, "If there are any who try to take advantage of the patriotic cooperation of their fellow Americans, I can assure you that the government must be, and will be, prepared to act against them."

China Debate Set Oct. 18 by UN

UNITED NATIONS, Oct. 7 (Reuters).—Members of the Steering Committee agreed today that the crucial debate in the General Assembly on Chinese representation will open Oct. 18, a UN spokesman announced.

The 25-nation committee discussed the Assembly's program over a private lunch today with Assembly President Adam Malik, the Indonesian Foreign Minister, in the chair.

Twelve plenary meetings have been scheduled on China, which, at the rate of two a day, would complete the Assembly's consideration of the question about Oct. 25 or 26. But the UN spokesman acknowledged that the debate might well go beyond those dates, since more than 100 delegations have indicated their wish to make speeches on the question.

China Gives Royal Welcome To Selassie; He Praises...

By John Burns

BEIJING, Oct. 7.—One of the world's few remaining emperors stood in the banquet room of the Great Hall of the People last night and lavished praise on the man whose very name is anathema to imperial systems everywhere.

"The depth and scope of Chairman Mao's thoughts have achieved for him a place of honor among the great thinkers," His examples shall live to inspire many generations to come," Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, declared.

The emperor's praise of the absent Chairman Mao Tse-tung cast irony on a day in which he became the first emperor to visit China since the Communists came to power and possibly, though historians here are reluctant to be categorical about it, the first foreign emperor to visit China in all of its 6,000-year history.

Grand Welcome.

If the Chinese sensed the irony of playing host to the man who styles himself the Elect of God and the King of Kings, they did not show it, for they accorded him as grand a welcome as he could expect anywhere.

His week-long visit began with an airport greeting by Premier Chen En-lai and a motorcade ride into the city along a route lined with an estimated 250,000 persons, many of them waving Ethiopian flags and shouting chants of welcome.

Hours later the 79-year-old emperor was the guest of honor at a state banquet, delivering a lengthy speech in which he praised not only Chairman Mao, but the entire history of China, "this great land, which has given birth to man's most enduring civilization."

"For the 500 banquet guests it was a splendid moment—the diminutive, bearded emperor standing erect on the platform above them, framed by massive Ethiopian and Chinese flags draped on the curtain behind him.

Determined Effort.

"Never in modern history has a nation successfully made such a determined and massive effort to achieve progress for so many millions of people within such a short span of time," he said.

In reply, Ting Pi-wu, vice-chairman of the republic and co-host of the banquet with Premier Chou, avoided any personal praise of Emperor Selassie. But he paid the emperor's government a rich string of compliments for its struggle against foreign colonialism and imperialism. He also expressed confidence on the issue of Ethiopia's representation at the United Nations.

"Ethiopia has already stated that it will vote to end and oust the rival regime of Taiwan."

"It may be no coincidence the Chinese have the emperor's visit only when UN votes on the Chai for Emperor Selassie, regarded as one of the continent's most influential figures in the past. The Chinese are hoping that the emperor's visit will give them a favorable African Union vote."

Norwegian journalist Per Egil Torgersen, who was expelled from the Soviet capital earlier this year, wrote in a recently published book that for fear of upsetting the Kremlin the Swedish government vetoed the idea of a presentation ceremony in the Moscow Embassy, on the advice of its ambassador there, Gunnar Jarring.

The 52-year-old writer is in official disgrace in Russia and declined to collect his prize here because he feared he would not be able to return home.

Rockett Asks U.S. Attica Probe

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (NYT).—Gov. Nelson Rockefeller has formally asked Attorney General John N. Mitchell to have the civil rights division of the Justice Department investigate charges by inmates of the Attica Correctional Facility that "their rights have been violated." In a letter to Mr. Mitchell dated Oct. 5 and made public yesterday, the governor said he was making the request "to assure public confidence in the objectivity and fairness of the entire Attica investigation."

Quick Action Urged

He said the case of the illegal alien employed by the White House "helps prove our point that the situation is now getting entirely out of hand, and quick governmental action is urgently needed." A worker identified as Francisco Martinez-Llamas, 32, told government officials he had paid an unidentified man in Tijuana $300 for forged immigration papers. Mr. Martinez said that while he was still in Mexico, he met Jose Romo, who promised him help in getting a job at the San Clemente White House, where Mr. Romo said he was employed as a gardener. After entering the United States with his false identification cards, Mr. Martinez found Mr. Romo at the Western White House, and was given a landscaping job according to immigration service records.

Nixon Nominee Facing Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (UPI).—The White House reaffirmed its support of the nomination of Mrs. Romana Bannuelo for U.S. Treasurer yesterday despite disclosures that her company had hired illegal aliens, but two senators hinted that she might have difficulty winning confirmation. Press secretary Ron L. Ziegler said the White House had not been aware Mrs. Bannuelo's food firm had been in trouble with federal immigration officials, although a "very extensive" security check was run on her. Ramona Food Products, a Gardena, Calif., firm founded and owned by Mrs. Bannuelo, was raided Tuesday by immigration authorities, who arrested 36 illegal aliens. It was disclosed that the 8 million-dollar-a-year corporation had been raided five times previously, and each time illegal aliens had been found. Sen. Russell B. Long D., La., said the Senate Finance Committee, which he heads, would investigate the case. "If it turns out in the worst possible light, I would vote against confirmation," Mr. Long said. Sen. Abraham Ribicoff D., Conn., a committee member, said "unquestionably an explanation should be asked of her." If such a hearing was done, knowingly, "it would put her qualifications in question," Sen. Ribicoff said.

To Foil 'White, Male Decision' Black Congresswoman to Run in 4 Presidential Primaries

By David S. Broder

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (UPI).—Rep. Shirley A. Chisholm, D., N.Y., said yesterday she is planning to run in at least four presidential primaries in an effort to assure that the choice of the 1972 Democratic nominee "will not be a white, male decision." The 47-year-old Brooklyn congresswoman said she was still "testing the water" but expected "to be able to announce by New Year's Day that I will definitely run."

Missed Causes

The Brooklyn congresswoman did not attend last month's caucus of elected black officials, where a variety of strategies for seeking influence in the presidential race were discussed, but she insisted, "I'm not at odds with black male politicians. The only thing is that black male politicians are no different than white male politicians. They have the same feelings about women in politics—it's difficult for them to regard the fact that women are human beings with talent, ability and know-how, who deserve to make their contribution on the basis of these God-given talents."

Let the 'Homa' fly you to Iran's anniversary celebrations.

This October Iran celebrates the 2,500th anniversary of the founding of the Persian Empire by Cyrus the Great. It promises to be really something. V.I.P.s from every corner of the earth will be flying in for the festivities. So why not join them. And here's a tip. The fabulous way to fly from Europe to Iran (and back) is with the 'Homa'. This is the magnificent bird painted on the tailplanes of Iran Air's all-Boeing fleet. Long ago the 'Homa' is said to have inspired the Persians to great things. Today it inspires us. So our pilots are specialists on the Europe-Tehran routes. So our food is always picked up en route deliciously fresh (never frozen). So the whole Iran Air family offer you unbeatable hospitality. Celebrations start when you catch your first 'Homa'. Track it down at your travel agent.

At the Labor party's conference this week in Brighton, it was hardly possible to hear the speeches over the loud crunching of broken promises and discarded policy being trampled underfoot.

Despite its civilized manners, British society is now under considerable strain. It is understandable that some union leaders should reach for the familiar old doctrines of economic salvation.

Two Chinas With One Voice

By C. L. Sulzberger

PARIS—Secretary Rogers has devised a subtle formula to solve the issue of Chinese admission to the United Nations.

In essence his proposal, which is strongly to be commended, implies basing resolution of the problem on the Yalta agreement by Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill that the Soviet Union should have three votes in the UN Assembly—one for the U.S.S.R. itself and one each for the Ukrainian and Byelorussian Republics.

That device, giving the Soviets three Assembly votes although all three spoke with one voice, proved with time to have little significance in mustering or opposing majorities.

Stalin called Roosevelt prior to Yalta. "You, of course, know that the Ukrainians and Byelorussians, which are constituent parts of the Soviet Union, are greater in population and in political importance than certain other countries which we all agree should belong to the number of initiators of the establishment of the international organization."

FDR's Opposition

Originally Roosevelt opposed Stalin's request and even talked of demanding 48 U.S. votes (then the number of American states) if Moscow insisted.

Soviet vote on the Security Council.

Rogers's theory, which has so far been offered only in tentative form, is that "after all, we know Byelorussia and the Ukraine are not separate states," so Peking in no way need condemn the idea as implying that acceptance means recognition of two Chinas, Communist and Taiwanese.

Meanwhile, Taiwan would have to yield its permanent seat on the Security Council. This, after all, was set aside for China as such and not for this or that political China.

are to have one paramount chief of state while retaining national autonomy. But there is no likelihood that the three would agree to yield two of their UN Assembly seats.

Chiang Kai-shek's regime is clearly prepared to fight any move threatening to weaken its present excessive position in the UN, but the reality of the matter is obvious: Peking, not Taipei, deserves the permanent Security Council seat plus its own seat in the Assembly.

In the Future

If Taiwan were still independent of China in the year 2000 it could oppose China in the Assembly. But if Taiwan had reached an accommodation or unification with China, there would be two harmonious Chinese voices in the Assembly.

This is a wise approach which should be acceptable to everyone in the end, although it is bound to be initially attacked by Taiwan and Albania, Communist China's spokesman on the issue.

But at the same time it could take comfort from the probability that within a few years it may well gain from having two Chinese voices in the UN.

Two Assembly Voices

Thus for the present and perhaps for many years to come, there would be two Chinese voices in the Assembly, that of Peking and that of Taipei.

Conversely, there is no legal insurance that if Byelorussia or the Ukraine ever seceded from the U.S.S.R. they would lose their UN membership.

Similarly, a technical problem could be posed before the UN by the proposed confederation of Egypt, Syria and Libya. They

Nixon and the Court

By William V. Shannon

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court is the most ingenious political institution invented by Americans. It is the highest court of appeal such as all lawful societies have, but it is also the third chamber of the national legislature.

When contending social forces, or outworn political mythologies make it impossible for the House and Senate to resolve a major issue, the Supreme Court ultimately intervenes.

Our government has so many checks, balances, and shared powers that it could not function if every question could not eventually be decided by somebody somewhere.

In this framework, President Nixon's desire to reshape the court along more conservative lines is entirely understandable. The power to influence the future course of this powerful institution is one of the cherished prerogatives of the presidency.

Senate's Position

In the exercise of its confirming power, the Senate normally and properly defers to the President's initiative unless it discovers evidence which reflects seriously upon a nominee's character, judgment, or professional competence.

been as vigilant in guarding against the appearance of conflict-of-interest impropriety as he should have been, and in the aftermath of the Fortas case, the Senate was not disposed to extend him the benefit of the doubt.

Undesirable as another protracted nomination fight would be, what most damages the court is not controversy but bad appointments whether they are quietly or noisily received.

But if Nixon really wished to strengthen the court, he would look beyond these less important factors and consider the range of abilities and experience which should be present.

It also needs a former elected official who has a "feel" for public opinion. Some of the giants of the court in this century—William Howard Taft, a former President and cabinet officer, Hughes and Warren, former governors, and Black, a former senator—were impressive partly because they brought to their judicial work the insights into practical affairs which political experience affords.

Instead of a man and a woman, or a Northerner and a Southerner, why not a "balanced ticket" of scholarly erudition and robust common sense?

Italy's Recession

The Slippery Slope

By Claire Sterling

ROME—Now that Budget Minister Antonio Gliotti has come right out and said so, there is no longer a doubt that Italy is sliding down the slippery slope into what may be its worst post-war recession.

For the first time in nearly a quarter-century, more than a million workers are unemployed here. Industrial production had dropped by 7 percent this August compared to last, and is lower now than it was two years ago.

It was the budget minister himself who admitted the possibility of a zero growth rate this week, along with the equally gloomy admission that the rest of 1971 was "the year of uncertainties" for him to make any predictions at all about 1972.

Origins in 1969

Whatever the many different reasons for this situation, its origins are traceable to the hot autumn of 1969, when practically the whole Italian working-class was out on strike, on and off, from September till Christmas.

The nation's convulsive reactions to this change are essentially a series of knee-jerk responses to the economy off balance.

What happened was much the same this time as in 1964, when a first postwar round of big wage increases brought on Italy's first postwar recession.

The economy might have rolled with, and even thrived on, the 1969 wage jump of about 30 percent, if productivity had kept pace.

By the end of 1970, Italy's 520 largest companies had warehouses bulging with $2 billion worth of unsold goods, and by now they are up to their eyes in trouble.

There's something you should know about the new low air fares to the States: They're all the same.

Every transatlantic airline (including us) is in the process of lowering fares.

A number of airlines have already announced new fares that are to be effective February 1.

And before it's over, your head will be spinning from the variety of fares being offered.

Unless you keep one thing in mind: no scheduled airline is going to get away with offering you a lower fare than any other scheduled airline flying the same route. In other words, even though fares are going to come down, all transatlantic airlines are going to charge the same.

That's a competitive fact of life.

So if you're planning to fly Pan Am., either now or in the near future, you can still do it with the assurance that you're going to pay the lowest fare available. (Which seems only right when you consider that, over the years, Pan Am has done more to lower air fares than any other airline.)

Further, if you make a reservation with us now, and we have lowered our fares by the time you depart, you'll be given the lower fare. Automatically.

And if you'd like help in planning your trip just drop in on a nearby Pan Am travel agent. Or give us a call.

Puzzling Carpenters

By Henry Pleasants

LONDON, Oct. 7 (UPI)—Young brother-sister hit-makers, whose gentle harmony, wholesome image and natural unpretentious personalities have crashed through to make them the nation's No. 1 recording team.

Nice sound! Burt Bacharach's "Close to You" and Fred Karlin's "For All We Know," sung softly over Richard's piano and Karen's drumming. The arrangements are all Richard's—imaginative, tasteful, wistful, ingenious. And the style?

It reads like something from a press handout—which it is. But it is also both an accurate and an apt description of the Carpenters, Richard, 24, and Karen, 21, who have had four gold (a million sales) records in the past 18 months, two 1970 Grammy awards, for Best New Group and Best Vocal Duo, and an NBC-TV show of their own.

Listening to their newest album, "Carpenters," it occurred to me that it might be described as a blend of cool jazz, soft rock, Victorian palm garden and cocktail lounge. Watching them at work, taping their hits for the BBC-TV special, encouraged this impression of an ingenious eclecticism.

They have been in London for a sold-out charity concert at the Royal Albert Hall and a 50-minute BBC-TV Special before going on to similar outings in Berlin and Amsterdam. And the local musical world hardly knows what to make of them or of their accomplishment. Probably typical was pop critic Chris Welch's notice of their Albert Hall concert in Melody Maker:

Richard's doodling at the piano takes offered a clue. One minute it's "Yes for Two" the next it's Oscar Peterson. The next it's Chopin's Minute Waltz, not quite in the style of Horowitz. Richard seems aware of the disparity, for in another instant he's practicing scales in tenths and arpeggio flourishes. Karen, meanwhile, is laying down a neat jazz drummer's paradiddle with her hand against her hip.

"Sweetness" "It was all sweetness and light: gentle harmonies, pretty songs, neat presentation, well-spoken young kids coming up with clean-cut professionalism. It sounds ghastly... yet, it was nice to hear Karen Carpenter and her brother Richard just singing and playing with their backing band, without pretensions or hang-ups."

"We're not in any particular bag," Richard told me during a session break. "As a kid in New Haven, Conn., I grew up with my old man's records—Dickelund, Harry James, Red Nichols, Liberace and Les Paul and Mary Ford. At Yale I studied classical piano and played jazz in the local clubs. Karen tried piano, but lost her heart to the drums."

Real nice American kids—in 1971! Friendly people, outgoing, well-mannered, casually but tidily dressed, hard working—and talented. No protest, no defiance. No porn. No blasphemy. No tripping. And their music?

"And even as professionals we've been into a bit of this and that. First there was the Carpenter Trio—that was in 1965, after the family had moved to Downey, near Los Angeles, and we were both going to Cal State.

Richard and Karen Carpenter.

We won a contest in the Hollywood Bowl and were signed by RCA. But nothing came of it. Then our bass player left to join the Detroit Symphony, and we got together with some Cal State friends to form a pop group, Spectrum.

a taste of the medicine handed out by critics to performers, especially young performers, who please people and are well paid for the pleasure.

Public vs. Critics "We played some good spots—the Troubadour, Disneyland and Whiskey-A-Go-Go. But we were a soft rock group and hard rock was in. Pretty soon we were out. Karen had started singing by that time, and we began experimenting with multi-track vocals and overdubbing. Herb Alpert, at A&M Records, liked the sound—and here we are..."

Well, nice guys in our anti-heroic, pleasure-despising times, don't win good notices. Louis Armstrong, who gave a lot of pleasure and earned a lot of money, knew the answer. "I learned early in my career," he told an interviewer a couple of years ago, "not to play for critics and other musicians."

Movies in Paris

Backstage Adventures

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss

PARIS, Oct. 7 (UPI)—Backstage drama, although it is superstitiously distrusted by actors and managers, almost always succeeds.

guards her jealously, predicting an important career for her charge. The girl falls in love, abandons her training, but then, drawn by the promise of fame, returns to her classes. That is all, but it is enough for the manipulation of a gentle, wistful, little comedy, quickened by inserted scenes of preparatory sessions in the rehearsal studios and a ballet or two. There is exquisite work by Sonia Petrova as the ambitious heroine and an arresting characterization by Ildian Arlen as her dragon mentor. "Le Feu Sacré" never flames high, but its soft glow is beguiling.

Consider the account of this pianist's amours in "Adrienne Lecouvreur" and "Zaza," the heart-break behind the gay face in "I Fagiolacci" and "He Who Gets Slapped" and "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," or the nostalgia for the theater of yesterdays in "David Garrick," "Masks and Faces" and "Trelawney of the Wells."

Assiduously courting failure, the manager selects the worst of impossible scripts, one that is guaranteed to give offense. "Springtime for Hitler" is its obnoxious title and he seeks the most pretentious director in New York to direct it and allow the role of the Nazi dictator to a fat, bed-ridden, hippie crooner. There is a disaster, but not the kind he expected.

This week two films take us through the stage door. At the Vendôme, the Marais, the Studio 15 and the Elysees-Lincoln III is "Le Feu Sacré," the story of a ballerina's schooling. It is director Vladimir Fergany's first full-length film and has an abundance of youthful grace and freshness. The scenario is so slight that the film has the air of a documentary, an advantage because the casual treatment of the romantic episodes lends the whole an authentic ring.

A fledgling dancer lives with her maid and an old teacher, a crippled ballet mistress who

"The Producers" (at the Arlington in English) is a backstage venture of a different species. A rowdy, raucous burlesque of contemporary Broadway, it introduces a four-flushing impresario who is advised by his bookkeeper that there are juicy profits to be extracted from presenting a flop—if one plays his cards dishonestly.

Russian Picasso

PARIS, Oct. 7 (UPI)—Picasso paintings from Soviet collections are to go on show here on or after Oct. 25, the date of the painter's 80th birthday. It was the latest move by the French government to give the occasion the greatest lustre.

Zero Mostel as the abominable showman is funnier than he ever has been; not only is he magnificently and hilariously disreputable as he woos little old ladies for gold, coms his colleagues and tries to play Leonard, but he is genuinely touching when his scheme goes awry. He is assisted in his slapstick coveting by an able team of comics, and the veteran address of comedy stage, Estelle Winwood, appears as one of his coy victims.

its chilling horror as do the two principal performers. As an exercise in naked naturalism "The Honeymoon Killers" has enormous impact. A Mahler score serves as powerful background music.

ishing a knife as he leads someone raising a revolver, two plainly outlined against white dress of a woman, killed each other. This of the concert, but the film tries to explain and recon the crime.

In "Gimme Shelter" (at the Berkeley and the Luxembourg II in English), a real double murder has been preserved on celluloid. This occurred during a free concert given by the Rolling Stones near San Francisco in 1969, an event attended by 300,000. While the British group was performing, a disturbance arose among the spectators and the photographers shifted their cameras to record it. One sees a man wearing a Hell's Angel leather jacket, brand-

Francis Reischbach's biography of Jean-Paul Sartre, the Publicis Elysee, the Fulbright-Germain and the Fulbright-Germain and the Fulbright-Germain filled with lovely music, and subject emerges as a most wild personality. But the film is inferior to the Reischbach cinematic portrait of Arthur Bernstein. Its materials are interesting always, but their creation, meanders and mis-re-edited to far greater advantage.

Entertainment in New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—This is how The New York Times critics rate new movies:

"Loog Ago Tomorrow," based on the novel "The Ragging Moon" by Peter Marshall leaps "that formidable chasm between sordid bathos and genuine pathos," reports A.H. Weiler. While writer-director Bryan Forbes and his company "haven't created a landmark film by any means," Weiler says, they have fashioned an "understated but passionate portrait of young people under tragic stress that evokes real compassion, an honest tear or two and, believe it or not, a chuckle here and there."

critic, "must be judged as by the material with which he's made his debut, an unadventurous..." "Skin Game," directed by Bogart, screenplay by Pierre Tom, "is a race-against-time that really means to be about people's fate to the end." writes Roger Greenup. "It's a very consistent movie, an comedy misses much more than it hits. But it is at will to kill the weightiest issues, and sometimes it is funny..." The movie's hero is a white man (James Garner) a black man (Lou Gossett) ing a profitable game in the Civil War South—Garner and off Gossett, pockets and then secretly from his so he can sell him again.

10 Pickford Films To Be Released

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (UPI)—Ten of the major films of Mary Pickford will be released commercially this month for the first time in 40 years. Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Miss Pickford's husband and a former film star, and Matty Kemp, director of the Mary Pickford Co., have announced the ten films to be shown beginning Oct. 15 at a New York theater are silent movies except "The Taming of the Shrew," which Miss Pickford made in 1929 with Douglas Fairbanks. The theater will install an electric organ to play the original scores for the pictures.

Miss Pickford was not at the news conference. The actress, who is 79, rarely leaves the bedroom of her Pickfair home in Beverly Hills, Calif. Miss Pickford retired from films in 1933.

It is always painful for a defender to discover in the post-mortem that he missed a chance to defeat the contract.

turned out badly if South's spade holding was a void, or a singleton. But this did not lessen the pain.

The pain was sharper than usual for West on the diagrammed deal. It was played in the international team semi-final playoff match in New York, and was one of the final deals when the result hung in the balance.

In one room North reached a contract of four spades, and had no trouble taking six trump tricks, three red-suit winners and a diamond ruff.

In the other room the bidding followed the course shown. North did not challenge his partner's heart suit by rebidding his spades on the second round. The result was a contract that could have been defeated.

West led the club king and East dropped the nine, a signal to continue clubs according to his methods. West went on with the ace, after which the defense had no chance to defeat the contract.

A third round of clubs was ruffed by South, who made ten tricks with no difficulty by cashing the heart ace and driving out the king. If East had played the club four on the first trick, to discourage a club continuation, West might have hit on the winning defense: a shift to spades. This play would leave the lines of communication open for the defense in the club suit.

South would attempt to draw trumps, but East would win the first or second trump trick with the king and reach his partner with a club lead to be given a spade ruff. Whether West would have been right to make the shift to spades can be discussed. It would have turned out badly if South's spade holding was a void, or a singleton. But this did not lessen the pain, for a spade shift would have won the match by one international match point.

"THE biological remembrance of things past." This quotation from Rene Dubois sums up the burden of "The Imperial Animal." The evolutionary history of the species both determines our present and coerces our future, for "a species is what it is because of the pattern of successful adaptation built into its genes. It is programmed to grow and develop in a highly specific way."

To understand ourselves as a species—what authors Tiger and Fox call "biogrammer"—is the first step in formulating any plan or theory of social behavior. Plans are necessary because our history may not have prepared us for our future. Altered circumstances may make our inherited pattern or strategy obsolete and even detrimental. Though the adaptive strategies of the human species have been highly successful, this success now seems in danger of backfiring—the hydrogen bomb being only the most obvious example.

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 7.—The Baltimore Orioles rested for the World Series today following a one-day scourge of the Bay Area...

While the Oakland Athletics disbanded for the winter, the Orioles flew home to Baltimore last night after their third sweep of the playoffs in three years...

Weaver named left-hander Dave McNally as his opening pitcher for the Series and said his reasons for starting McNally will make sense "if we win."

Defying the percentages, Weaver bypassed his two right-handed 30-game winners and screwball-throwing left-hander Mike Cuellar for McNally...

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who arrived in Baltimore today, are heavily loaded with right-hand hitters and had a 39-19 record against left-handed pitching during the regular season...

"I talked with the two scouts, Jim Russo and Walter Youse," Weaver said, "and we came up with just as many, if not more reasons to pitch a left-hander as a right-hander."

Reasons Come Later "After the Series, I'll tell you why," he said. "If not, they'll make sense."

The Orioles are a 10-1 pick to make the series in four straight games, said Snyder.

They Asked for It

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 7.—So Charley Fox has today off to celebrate his 30th birthday. That's what the manager of the San Francisco Giants wanted...

When his second pitch to Willie eluded the catcher, and let Clemente scamper to second...

It took only a little while for Clemente to trot home from second, Stargell home from first and Oliver all the way around...

Looking on with interest from the Pittsburgh dugout was Bruce Eugene Kison, age 21, destined to be the winning pitcher...

Fad in Catastrophe

By Russell Baker

WASHINGTON—Some days it seems that everybody is in love with catastrophe. The imminent destruction of the country is forecast casually over hamburgers. Unless, of course, certain conditions are met. "I'm telling you here and now that unless something is done, and done quickly, about the quality of hamburger rolls in this country, America is going to be destroyed."

Baker

"If America dies, where will we bury it?" inquires an advertisement placed in Life magazine by the American Medical Association. The AMA is worried about pollution, ecology and such because, as doctors of medicine, a sick environment can make people sick, or something like that. The message of the ad doesn't matter. It's just that it's odd to see the staid old 19th-century AMA falling so easily into the popular swinging catastrophe metaphor.

Have we always sat around with smiles on our faces so deliriously predicting the destruction of the republic? Or have we taken it up as a social pastime only since the hot speech of the late, great 1960s made it so trendy to discuss politics in terms of burning the country down, blowing the Congress in the shins, and, in general, making revolution, revolution, revolution?

So, let us imagine that some condition of survival has not been met—that America has not "solved" its race problem, has not stopped air pollution, has not restrained the practical impulses of industry or labor, has not heeded the advice of its citizens under 21, has not, in short, done one of the million things the catastrophe folks say is essential to its survival.

If we take the catastrophe talk at face value, we may now anticipate destruction of the country. The prospect sounds dreadful—so dreadful, in fact, that it is positively titillating, which may explain the popularity of catastrophe as a conversation piece. The reality, however, is rather dull, even routine. Talk about the country being destroyed induces visions of slum-bag movie endings—Sensar pulling down the temple, John Wayne wiping out the entire army (enemy, of course). Everybody wiped out, thunder followed by echo, then dust, then silence.

But this is not what happens when real countries are really destroyed. It is the imagery of movies, melodrama, television. We scare ourselves by sitting in the dark contemplating the possibility that we may not, after all, solve America's mass-transportation problem and that—

Thunder, fantastic explosions of lights, followed by terrifically appropriate background music—just like "2001"—and then this really moving silence which fills the whole theater. And America has got what she deserves, we think, although we are very moved, very affected. And then we get up and leave the theater because the show is over, and the country destroyed, and we have to remember to pick up a quart of milk somewhere in the debris of the way home.

The country probably is being destroyed right this moment. Certainly a good bit of it has been destroyed over the past 30 years, and an awful lot of it was destroyed before that. In fact, destruction of the country probably goes on pretty regularly, even during the decades when nobody is sitting around predicting it. Destruction of a country is probably unspectacular in most stages. Most of the events that later were seen, cumulatively, to have been the fall of Rome would have made very dull movies.

The same is true for the destruction of America. Those of us who no longer laugh enthusiastically about lumbago jokes have already seen depressing quantities of destruction. Where is the country of the two-pants suit? Destroyed. Where is the land of the Brooklyn Dodgers? Destroyed. Destroyed with the much later America of the Washington Senators.

Where is the extroverted optimistic country that Franklin Roosevelt led off to war in 1941? And day after day, while the roof falls in all around us, we go right on trying to remember to pick up a quart of milk on the way home.

The First Marriage Of T.S. Eliot

By Alden Whitman

NEW YORK (NYT)—T. S. Eliot's first marriage, to Vivienne Haigh, was broken up in 1932 in part on the advice of his Anglo-Catholic spiritual counselors, according to a biographical memoir of the poet to be published next month.

The book, by E. Elliot, a memoirist, was written by Robert Sencourt, a British literary critic who was Eliot's close friend from 1927 until his death in 1965. Mr. Sencourt died two years ago.

The book, to be issued by Dodd, Mead & Co., is the first intimate glimpse of Eliot since his death. He requested that no biography of him appear, and, according to Thomas H. Lipscomb, Dodd, Mead's editor in chief, "his widow, Valerie Eliot, has done all in her power to carry out his wishes."

Mr. Sencourt's memoir was reportedly written without the cooperation of Mrs. Eliot, who was married to the poet in 1927 when she was 39 years old and he was 26 and a semi-orphan. Eliot married his first wife, a Briton, in 1915, shortly after the St. Louis-born writer had moved to London. "She attracted him by a combination of melancholy, disillusionment, fragility and sensitiveness," Mr. Sencourt wrote, adding:

"For the next 17 years of Tom's life, this attachment was the insoluble enigma and enduring drama of his life."

In the late twenties, however, according to Mr. Sencourt, "Vivienne was becoming more and more wayward and unpredictable," and by 1930 "even the semblance of married life with Vivienne became impossible."

"Tom and she were leading lives apart," Mr. Sencourt asserted, continuing: "She was developing a tendency to find fault with everything, both in herself and those around her. She did not join his worship."

In a book advisory to establish serenity, Eliot took his wife to the Riviera, Mr. Sencourt said. And when this failed, the poet's Anglo-Catholic spiritual counselors became decisive—he had a duty to his career and his spiritual life," the book charges, adding: "He must not wreck the work he was doing for the church."

Mr. Sencourt does not identify the counselors nor the precise circumstances in which their advice was conveyed. In any event, Eliot bade good-bye to his wife forever in 1932, when he sailed to the United States to lecture at Harvard. "Tom never saw her again except on the other side of a solicitor's table" arranging a permanent separation, according to the book. She died in 1947 after suffering a "final breakdown."

In 1934, after his return to London, according to Mr. Sencourt, Eliot went "to live with his vicar, Eric Chestham, with whom he remained for the next five or six years."

Later Eliot formed a companionship with a John Hayward, a British bibliophile, that lasted for 12 years, or until about 1956, the memoir declares. Eliot's second wife, the former Valerie Fletcher, became his secretary in 1950. Of her Mr. Sencourt says, she "had one remarkable ambition, which was to become secretary to a celebrated writer."

GERIATRICS: The birth date on Levi Records' Indiana driver's license is listed as 10/06/71. Since Wednesday was 10/06/71, the birth date would appear to stamp Levi as a precocious infant who was licensed to drive on the day he was born. Right? Nope. The '71 stands for 1871, not 1971. On Wednesday Records was celebrating his 100th birthday. He still gets behind the wheel and in 59 years of driving, said a daughter, "he's never even had to have a fender replaced."

GERIATRICS (Cont'd): Wednesday was the 79th wedding anniversary of George (100 years old) and Annie (102) Meador of Ringold, Pa. Their formula for marital success, according to Annie: "We never fought, for fighting is the devil's work."

"Remember, thou shalt not steal," boomed the voice coming from the rafters of a church in Vrasa, Sweden. But the two men ignored Vicar Lar Ekrelin's tape recorded command and went about their nasty business.

PEOPLE: A Wedding In Tehran

The son of the last king of Italy was married yesterday to the Swiss biscuit heiress and former world water polo champion to whom he has been engaged for 11 years.

Crown Prince Victor Emmanuel of Savoy, 34, and Marina Doria, 36, said "I do" in the Roman Catholic chapel of Tehran's Ardeshah School, which is run by Italian priests. Victor Emmanuel, who works in Switzerland as a bank official and helicopter salesman, chose Tehran as the site of their wedding because he is a friend of the Shah of Iran.

Former King Umberto II, who has lived in exile in Portugal since Italy voted out the monarchy in 1946, did not attend and indicated he did not approve of his son's wedding to a commoner. A spokesman for Umberto said in Portugal earlier this week the ex-king was "not aware" of the prince's wedding plans. Italian Embassy officials likewise did not attend. The prince holds a Belgian passport and is barred under Italy's 1947 republican constitution from setting foot on Italian soil, although he slipped into the country briefly in 1958 to see a striptease girl friend.
